Redemptorist have been carrying out missions since St. Alphonsus founded us in 1732. It's been almost 288 years spreading the Gospel of Christ all over the Earth, even in the most unexpected places.

Pope Francis calls us continually to renew and redouble our missionary efforts (EG 1). This is vital for the Church: Either we are missionaries, or we will not be. Furthermore, if we don't testify, who is going to believe that we live a Good New that happily fulfills our life?

Since the redemptorist missionary team (Cesplam) was created in 1970, there have been many changes: the way of living, thinking, believing and the way of relating. We have to think that each time has its own sensibility and requires an own language. That's what the Gospel itself says: "put new wine in fresh skins" (Mathew 9, 17). This congress is aimed at helping think about our missionary being, its language, its theology and the ways of planning the mission for the current society regarding our European contexts, which are very different to the ones of the mission "Ad Gentes".
